KREIDER AWARDED $866 BY THE JURY

ARCHIE MATTHEWS MUST PAY FOR ALIENATION OF AFFECTIONS.

SUIT IN MORRISON DECIDED

Jury Returned Verdict for Plaintiff Early This Morning—Sensational Evidence.

Morrison, May 14—Special to Telegraph—The jury in the Kreider-Matthews alienation suit, which has been on trial in the circuit court here returned a verdict today, awarding Kreider $866.

Morrison, May 14—Special—The jury in the case of Frank Kreider against Arch Matthews, in which the latter is accused of alienating the affections of Mr. Kreider's wife, was secured yesterday in the circuit court and the taking of testimony the most sensational in recent years in the circuit court started today. Mr. Kreider in this case sues Mr. Matthews for $10,000.

Many Are Present. In view of the sensational testimony to be produced and expected, a large crowd was attracted to court. Much of the testimony is unfit for publication. The testimony went to show that Mrs. Kreider visited the Matthews home while she was living with Mr. Kreider as his wife.

Kreider's Testimony. Mr. Kreider related his marriage with his wife and their domestic life, finally the fact that she frequently visited the Matthews home, and finally her desertion and going to the Matthews home to reside.

Sensational Evidence. Possibly the most sensational evidence of the day was related by Mr. and Mrs. Stern, who swore they were in Rock Island Sept. 16, 1911 and saw Matthews with a woman in that city. Being shown a picture of Mrs. Kreider, they recognized it as the woman who was in that city.

Hired Men Testify. Several hired men employed by Mr. Kreider testified in the sensational case and all stated that the testimony given by Mr. Kreider was correct.

Way She Got Tight. A girl employed by Matthews from July, 1911, to February, 1912, asserted that the Kreider woman was in the house one night, and at 11 o'clock she was called by Matthews to help get the woman home, due to the fact that Mrs. Kreider was intoxicated.

The evidence so far goes to show that the Kreider woman went to the Matthews home, and that Matthews did not go to the Kreider home. The rest of the day was taken up in testimony for the plaintiff.

FISH WARDEN'S CASE IS ON TRIAL TODAY

WILLIAM E. ORR ASKS DAMAGES FROM STERLING SALOON KEEPER.

James Akeman, A. T. Manges and Harry Burlingame went to Morrison this noon to testify in the suit of Fish Warden W. E. Orr vs. Fred Mercer, the Sterling saloon keeper whom Mr. Orr is suing for $10,000 damages. Mr. Orr, it will be remembered, while trying to arrest Fred Heister in Mercer's saloon some time ago, was assaulted and suffered severe injuries, including a broken nose. He claims that Mercer, whom it is said was tending bar at the time struck him with a beer bottle, causing the fractured proboscis. Messrs. Akeman, Manges and Burlingame were with him in the auto trip to Sterling from this city and found him in Mercer's back room after considerable search for him.

JAP SITUATION QUIET

No Developments Is Expected Until Johnson Acts.

Ambassador Chinda Will Await California Governor's Next Move—Case Then Up to Wilson.

Washington, May 14—The California Japanese situation is in a state of arrested development, so far as official Washington is concerned.

Both the federal administration and the Japanese embassy are waiting for Governor Johnson to signify whether he intends to heed Secretary Bryan's appeal for postponement of the whole question, or whether he will sign the alien land bill now in his hands.

Though the adjournment of the California legislature has extended Governor Johnson's time limit for making his decision from ten to thirty days it is confidently expected here that he will not wait until the expiration of that period before acting on the bill. In fact, it is expected the president will receive a message from the California governor in a day or two.

Until Governor Johnson has acted Ambassador Chinda does not expect to have any communication with the state department on the California situation.

Even after Governor Johnson has signed the bill, as it is believed he will do, the Japanese embassy is prepared to adopt the course of waiting for President Wilson to make the next move.

Having presented its complaint with deliberation and thoroughness, Japan expects the president to act accordingly, and it has nothing further to say to the United States at this time. It has likewise been made clear at the embassy that Japan does not expect to take up its case in the federal courts.

TO TAKE MOTION FILMS OF STERLING

PROSPERITY

Advertisements Are the Guideposts Showing Way

By HOLLAND.

WOULD you travel the road that leads to Prosperity? Then read the advertisements. They are the guideposts pointing the way. Disregard the advertisements and you are likely to go wrong, and even if you finally reach your destination you do so only after needless delays and unnecessary traveling.

The traveler who would disregard guideposts, who would not examine them at every opportunity, would be called foolish. He would get little sympathy when he complained of time lost going the wrong direction.

The man who neglects to read the advertisements is disregarding guideposts and is taking unnecessary chances and is delaying his own progress.

ADVERTISEMENTS OFFER WAYS TO SAVE DOLLARS.

If you fail to read and profit by the advertisements you are giving your neighbor who does read them an advantage.

DO NOT BELIEVE IN NEWSPAPER CONTESTS

FREEPORT PAPERS FOLLOW ACTION OF TELEGRAPH REGARDING "PRIZES."

Freeport Standard: The management of a contest company has been in Freeport for several days trying to induce the Daily Standard to put on a contest here and we also understand that he tried to interest the Daily Bulletin in the project, but he failed to land either paper, though he had a very attractive proposition from his point of view. These newspaper contests are being frowned upon by most of the leading papers of the state and their opinion of them was voiced at a meeting of the Illinois Daily Newspaper association in Chicago last November, when the following resolution was offered and adopted by unanimous vote of members present:

"Resolved, That voting contests are usually carried on in a questionable manner, and sometimes in a dishonest manner, and even though they may be carried on honestly they are detrimental and demoralizing to the best interests of the newspaper business and should not be used or encouraged."

This was the opinion of the editors of such well known newspapers as the Alton Times, Aurora Beacon, News, Bloomington Pantagraph, the Champaign Gazette, Danville Commercial News, Dixon Telegraph, Elgin Courier, Jacksonville Journal, Joliet Herald, Moline Dispatch, Peoria Herald Transcript, Peoria Journal, Quincy Whig, Rockford Republic, Springfield Register, Rockford Register Gazette and many other leading newspapers of the state.

DEMENTTOWN ... DOINGS

The days are now here
When the people must think
Of the water-works question
And the printers' black ink
Will be spread on the papers
To influence the men
Who will vote at the election
The council'll call then.

All of which, we acknowledge is rotten poetry—but which does a lot to help fill up the space.

How to Run an Oatmobile

From Senator N. H. Jensen, that accomplished master of the paint brush and lodge emblems, we get the following free instructions on How to Run an Oatmobile, and those who saw the Senator trying to climb the National Bank structure yesterday afternoon when Officer-Detective Town-Clerk Democratic-Politician Steel stopped him from accomplishing his fiendish designs, will appreciate to the full the value
of his advice:

It is a cinch to operate an automobile. All a man has got to do is to:
See that he has enough gasoline
in the tank, water in the radiator, oil in the can.

Keep the Prestolite tank and the side and tail lights filled.

Pull up at the right side of the street, stop the engine, get out, run around the car, open the door, put your wife in, shut the door, run around the car, get in the front seat, start the engine and proceed.

Keep one eye on the speedometer,
another on the traffic officer, another on the motor cops, another on the oil drip, another on the air supply, another on the children on the sidewalk who are apt to run into the street at any moment, another on the tires, another on the throttle, another on the emergency brake and still another on the road ahead.

Converse pleasantly with your passengers of the Darwinian theory of Maeterlinck's latest play and keep your mind on the engine carburetor.
Choke back profanity under the most exasperating circumstances and explain every noise made by the engine.
Listen to advice from every passenger and hear the tales of automobile wrecks in which they have figured.
Use the diplomacy and tact of a Chesterfield and the navigation profess of a Chicago river tugboat captain, dodge milk wagons, bicycles, moving vans, laundry wagons, pedestrians, baby cabs, steam rollers, bricks, tacks, glass bottles, tin cans,
street cars, ruts, sand piles and dogs.
For if anything happens through a combination of circumstances which could not be prevented by any power beneath the sun, natural or supernatural, through his own fault or the fault of anyone else within the radius of a half-mile, the automobile driver is to blame.

DIXON MEN VISIT NORTHWEST MISSOURI

SPEND TWO HOURS AT HOME OF WALTER MERRIMAN NEAR UTICA.

PARTY DELIGHTED WITH VISIT

Jack Myers Nearly, But Not Quite,
Bought a Present for Wilbur Crawford.

A party of Lee county men left Dixon on the 26th and spent several days in the Grand River country in northwest Missouri. Chillicothe being their destination. This article is intended to tell something of their trip, of the country visited and also to tell the readers of the Telegraph that Walter Merriman is happy, contented and prosperous and sends his best regards to his friends here in Dixon and vicinity.

A word now historical and by way of introducing you to northwest Missouri and to the man who has done most to develop that beautiful country known as the Grand River Valley.

The man who backs his opinion with real money is entitled to your attention.

About eighteen years ago a young man at Chillicothe, Mo., began buying and selling large tracts of prairie lands and developing the broad valleys of that part of the state.

The soil on these lands being black and of wonderful depth was covered with blue grass and some places red top, and had been pastured for years. On these lands no rock, or sand, or gravel was found; it is said to be the richest wheat, corn, clover and blue grass land on earth. It is really, as Mr. Clinton Judd asserts, the most wonderful grass land in the world.

In the broad valleys the black soil reaches a depth of seven feet, a black, alluvial soil, the counterpart of which is found only in central Illinois, where lands are selling from $250 an acre upward. And from the country around Bloomington and El Paso hundreds of farmers have moved to the Grand River country in the past ten years. These men are the best farmers to be found anywhere and the most exacting and discriminating judges of land.

But enough of this.
The Dixon party was met at the train by two big touring cars and after breakfast taken to visit Walter Merriman on his 560 acre farm two miles from Utica, and seven miles from Chillicothe. Mr. Merriman was busy, which we understand is a habit he has. But when he saw the Dixon crowd everything was dropped for the time being. Never did a party of visitors receive a more cordial reception. For two hours we were shown over the big farm.

Mr. Merriman asserted that stock need not be fed sooner than Jan 15, and not over sixty days. We were shown through Mr. Merriman's new $8,000 house, a modern home, handsome enough inside and out for the governor of Missouri. On this farm we saw a stallion weighing 2260 pounds, Bronze turkeys weighing 30 pounds, and bushels of little pigs, red sows that would weigh 400 and up. Mr. Merriman has a fine orchard of some sixty acres which is so covered with bloom that it looks like a vast snow drift. From his door you can see Chillicothe, 7 miles away. A 160 acre orchard of Jonathans lies a mile to the east. Six hundred cars of apples were shipped last fall.

Mr. Merriman loaded our two machines with apples. One of our party asked him what price he had on his farm. "I won't price it. I don't want to sell it," said Mr. Merriman.

In five minutes we were two miles south and saw a lot of mules in a pasture lot. We stopped for a half hour. A pair of three year old mules weighing 2760 pounds were priced at $500. Jack Myers said if he had the money he would buy them and give them to Wilbur Crawford to replace his $800 team that was killed on the railroad at Nachusa.

In the beginning of this article I spoke of the man who began the development of the rich valley lands of the country about Chillicothe. As Mr. Bazell J. Meek has sold land to many Dixon and Lee county men in the past six years he is already known to many readers of this paper by name at least. He crops his lands in corn or wheat, or oats, having one of the most extensive farming outfits in the country. Titles are always good, else he does not handle them, taxes are less than half those in Illinois. Chillicothe has three lines of railroad to Kansas City, nearly, if not quite the best market in the world for the things we buy and sell—stock cattle for instance. Also Chillicothe has two lines to St. Louis and three to Chicago. Mr. Meek piloted the Dixon party for two days last week. He extends an invitation to you to come and view the lands. Autos are there to take care of you free as long as you care to stay. It is not a far call to Chillicothe. Take your supper in Dixon and breakfast in Chillicothe. Only eight hours from Mendota. It is a mighty nice little trip and not at all expensive.

A word about rents on their farms. A farm sold to a Lee county man last week is rented this year for $6.00 cash rent, although I know of a few farms renting for more. Of late few farms are rented for cash. Half the corn in crib, half the grain in machine, half the hay in stack, is about the rule. This gives the owner from $12 to $18 per acre rent.

In conclusion I wish to say this: I know the danger of exaggeration

We extend a cordial invitation to every man, woman and child in Dixon and vicinity to attend the MOTION PICTURE EXHIBIT OF COTTON TEXTILE MANUFACTURING

At the Opera House, May 15th, afternoon and evening.

CHAPTER XV.

That's the Question.

"How many times has he seen you?"

"Twice."

"That's unfortunate."

"Damned unfortunate; but one must expect some sort of a handicap in a game like this. Before I'm done with him, he'll look me full in the face and wonder if he's ever seen me before. I wasn't always a detective. I was a carpenter once, as you know, and I'll take to the tools again. As soon as I'm handy with them I'll hunt up lodgings in Hicks street. He may suspect me at first, but he won't long; I'll be such a confounded good workman. I only wish I hadn't such pronounced features. I want to deceive him to his face. He's clever, this same Brotherson, and there's glory to be got in making a fool of him. Do you think it could be done with a beard? I've never worn a beard. While I'm settling back into my old trade, I can let the hair grow."

"Sweetwater! We'd better give the task to another man—to some one Brotherson has never seen and won't be suspicious of?"

"He'll be suspicious of everybody who tries to make friends with him now; only a little more so with me; that's all. But I've got to meet that, and I'll do it by being temporarily, of course, exactly the man I seem. My health will not be good for the next few weeks, I'm sure of that. But I'll be a model workman, neat and conscientious with just a suspicion of dash where dash is needed. He knows the real thing when he sees it, and there's not a fellow living more alive to shams. I won't be a sham. I'll be it. You'll see."

"But the doubt. Can you do all this in doubt of the issue?"

"No; I must have confidence in the end, and I must believe in his guilt. Nothing else will carry me through. I must believe in his guilt."

"Yes, that's essential."

"And I do. I never was surer of anything than I am of that. But I'll have the deuce of a time to get evidence enough for a grand jury. That's plainly to be seen, and that's why I'm so dead set on the business. It's such an even toss-up."

"I don't call it even. He's got the start of you every way. You can't go to his tenement; the janitor there would recognize you even if he didn't."

"Now I will give you a piece of good news. They're to have a new janitor next week. I learned that yesterday. The present one is too easy. He'll be out long before I'm ready to show myself there; and so will the woman who took care of the poor washerwoman's little child. I'd not have risked her curiosity. Luck isn't all against us. How does Mr. Challoner feel about it?"

"Not very confident; but willing to give you any amount of rope. Sweetwater, he let me have a batch of letters written by his daughter which he found in a secret drawer. They are not to be read, or even opened, unless a great necessity arises. They were written for Brotherson's eye—or so the father says—but she never sent them; too exuberant perhaps. If you ever want them—I cannot give them to you tonight, and wouldn't if I could—don't go to Mr. Challoner—you must never be seen at his hotel—and don't come to me, but to the little house in West Twenty-ninth street, where they will be kept for you, tied up in a package with your name on it. By the way, what name are you going to work under?"

"My mother's—Zugg."

"Good! I'll remember. You can always write or even telephone to Twenty-ninth street. I'm in constant communication with them there, and it's quite safe."

"Thanks. You're sure the superintendent is with me?"

"Yes, but not the inspector. He sees nothing but the victim of a strange coincidence in Orlando Brotherson."

"Again the scales hang even. But they won't remain so. One side is bound to rise. Which? That's the question, Mr. Gryce."

CHAPTER XVI.

Opposed.

There was a new tenant in the Hicks street tenement. He arrived late one afternoon and was shown two rooms, one in the rear building and another in the front one. Both were on the fourth floor. He demurred at the former, thought it gloomy but finally consented to try it. The other, he said, was too expensive. The janitor—new to the business—was not much taken with him and showed it, which seemed to offend the newcomer, who was evidently an irritable fellow owing to ill health.

However, they came to terms as I have said, and the man went away, promising to send in his belongings the next day. He smiled as he said this and the janitor who had rarely seen such a change take place in a human face, looked uncomfortable for a moment and seemed disposed to make some remark about the room they were leaving. But, thinking better of it, locked the door and led the way downstairs. As the prospective tenant followed, he may have noticed, probably did, that the door they had just left was a new one—the only new thing to be seen in the whole shabby place.

The next night that door was locked on the inside. The young man had taken possession. As he put away the remnants of a meal he had cooked for himself, he cast a look at his surroundings, and imperceptibly sighed. Then he brightened again, and sitting down on his solitary chair, he turned his eyes on the window which, uncurtained and without shade, stared open-mouthed, as it were, at the opposite wall rising high across the court.

In that wall, one window only seemed to interest him and that was on a level with his own. The shade of this window was up, but there was no light back of it and so nothing of the interior could be seen. But his eye remained fixed upon it, while his hand, stretched out towards the lamp burning near him, held itself in readiness to lower the light at a minute's notice.

Did he see only the opposite wall and that unilluminated window? Was there no memory of the time when, in a previous contemplation of those dismal panes, he beheld stretching between them and himself, a long, low bench with a plain wooden tub upon it, from which a dripping cloth beat out upon the boards beneath a dismal note, monotonous as the ticking of a clock?

One might judge that such memories were indeed his, from the rapid glance he cast behind him at the place where the bed had stood in those days. It was placed differently now.

But if he saw, and if he heard these suggestions from the past, he was not less alive to the exactions of the present, for, as his glance flew back across the court, his finger suddenly moved and the flame it controlled sputtered and went out. At the same instant, the window opposite sprang into view as the lamp was lit within, and for several minutes the whole interior remained visible—the books, the worktable, the cluttered furniture, and, most interesting of all, its owner and occupant. It was upon the latter that the newcomer fixed his attention, and with an absorption equal to that he saw expressed in the countenance opposite.

But his was the absorption of watchfulness; that of the other of introspection. Mr. Brotherson—we will no longer call him Dunn even here where he is known by no other name—had entered the room clad in his heavy overcoat and, not having taken it off before lighting his lamp, still stood with it on, gazing eagerly down at the model occupying the place of honor on the large center table. He was not touching it—not at this moment—but that his thoughts were with it, that his whole mind was concentrated on it, was evident to the watcher across the court; and, as this watcher took in this fact and noticed the loving care with which the enthusiastic inventor finally put out his finger to rearrange a thread or twirl a wheel, his disappointment found utterance in a sigh which echoed sadly through the dull and cheerless room.

Had he expected this stern and self-contained man to show an open indifference to work and the hopes of a lifetime? If so, this was the first of the many surprises awaiting him.

He was gifted, however, with the patience of an automaton and continued to watch his fellow tenant as long as the latter's shade remained up. When it fell, he rose and took a few steps up and down, but not with the celerity and precision which usually accompanied his movements. Doubt disturbed his mind and impeded his activity. He had caught a fair glimpse of Brotherson's face as he approached the window, and though it continued to show abstraction, it equally displayed serenity and a complete satisfaction with the present if not with the future. Had he mistaken his man after all? Was his instinct, for the first time in his active career, wholly at fault?

He had succeeded in getting a glimpse of his quarry in the privacy of his own room, at home with his thoughts and unconscious of any espionage, and how had he found him? Cheerful, and natural in all his movements.

But the evening was young. Retrospect comes with later and more lonely hours. There will be opportunities yet for studying this impassive countenance under much more telling and productive circumstances than these. He would await these opportunities with cheerful anticipation. Meanwhile, he would keep up the routine watch he had planned for this night. Something might yet occur. At all events he would have exhausted the situation from this standpoint.

And so it came to pass that at an hour when all the other hard-working people in the building were asleep, or at least striving to sleep, these two men still sat at their work, one in the light, the other in the darkness, facing each other, consciously to the one, unconsciously to the other, across the hollow well of the now silent court. Eleven o'clock! Twelve! No change on Brotherson's part or in Brotherson's room; but a decided one in the place where Sweetwater sat. Objects which had been totally indistinguishable even to his penetrating eye could now be seen in ever brightening outline. The moon had reached the open space above the court, and he was getting the full benefit of it. But it was a benefit he would have been glad to dispense with. Darkness was like a shield to him. He did not feel quite sure that he wanted this shield removed. With no curtain to the window and no shade, and all this brilliance pouring into the room, he feared the disclosure of his presence there, or, if not that, some effect on his own mind of those memories he was more anxious to see mirrored in another's discomfiture than in his own.

Was it to escape any lack of concentration which these same memories might bring, that he rose and stepped to the window? Or was it under one of those involuntary impulses which move us in spite of ourselves to do the very thing our judgment disapproves?

No sooner had he approached the sill than Mr. Brotherson's shade flew way up and he, too, looked out. Their glances met, and for an instant the hardy detective experienced that involuntary stagnation of the blood which follows an inner shock. He felt that he had been recognized. The moonlight lay full upon his face, and the other had seen and known him. Else, why the constrained attitude and sudden rigidity observable in this confronting figure, with its partially lifted hand? A man like Brotherson makes no pause in any action however trivial, without a reason. Either he had been transfixed by this glimpse of his enemy on watch, or—daring thought!—had seen enough of sepulchral suggestion in the wan face looking forth from this fatal window to shake him from his composure and let loose the grinning devil of remorse from its iron prison-house? If so, the movement was a memorable one, and the hazard quite worth while. He had gained—not he had gained nothing. He had been the fool of his own wishes. No one, let alone Brotherson, could have mistaken his face for that of a woman. He had forgotten his newly-grown beard. Some other cause must be found for the other's attitude. It savored of shock, if not fear. If it were fear, then had he roused an emotion which might rebound upon himself in sharp reprisal. Death had been known to strike people standing where he stood; mysterious death of a species quite unrecognizable. What warranty had he that it would not strike him, and now? None.

Yet it was Brotherson who moved first. With a shrug of the shoulder plainly visible to the man opposite, he turned away from the window and without lowering the shade, began gathering up his papers for the night, and later banking up his stove with ashes.

Sweetwater, with a breath of decided relief, stepped back and threw himself on the bed. It had really been a trial for him to stand there under the other's eye, though his mind refused to formulate his fear, or to give him any satisfaction when he asked himself what there was in the situation suggestive of death to the woman or harm to himself.

Nor did morning light bring counsel, as is usual in similar cases. He felt the mystery more in the hubbub and restless turmoil of the day than in the night's silence and inactivity. He was glad when the stroke of six gave him an excuse to leave the room. At half past six he found the janitor. He was, to all appearance, in a state of great excitement and he spoke very fast.

"I won't stay another night in that room," he loudly declared, breaking in where the family were eating breakfast by lamplight. "I don't want to make any trouble and I don't want to give my reasons; but that room don't suit me. I'd rather take the dark one you talked about yesterday. There's the money. Have my things moved today, will ye?"

"But your moving out after one night's stay will give that room a bad name," stammered the janitor, rising awkwardly. "There'll be talk and I won't be able to let that room all winter."

"Nonsense! Every man hasn't the nerves I have. You'll let it in a week. But let or no let, I'm going front into the little dark room. I'll get the boss to let me off at half past four. So that's settled."

He waited for no reply and got none; but when he appeared promptly at a quarter to five, he found his few belongings moved into a middle room on the fourth floor of the front building, which, oddly perhaps, chanced to be next door to the one he had held under watch the night before.

The first page of his adventure in the Hicks street tenement had been turned, and he was ready to start upon another.

MAKE LIBERTY DASH

Two Prisoners Try to Stab Way From Courtroom.

Detective and Deputy Sheriff Are Victims of Convicted Men—Knives Given by Woman.

Chicago, May 14.—Just as they had been sentenced to Joliet prison for indeterminate terms by Judge Cooper for highway robbery, two men armed with knives supposed to have been supplied by a woman admirer of one of them, made a desperate but unsuccessful dash for liberty.

Half a dozen suspicious characters, thought to have been friends of the convicted men, had been driven from the railed enclosure before the bench a few minutes before and it is thought by the authorities that Chicago came near witnessing a re-enactment of a tragedy as grave as that perpetrated by the Allen gang in the courthouse at Hillsville, Va., where the judge and several spectators were killed. Spectators and attaches were thrown into a panic and several women fainted.

A. C. Boschulte, a detective, and Deputy Sheriff Joseph Bohaboy were stabbed by the men and the former narrowly escaped death when Harry Evans, one of the prisoners, plunged a knife into his neck within a fraction of an inch of the jugular vein. Peter Jensen, the other robber, after stabbing Bohaboy four times in the chest, attempted to slash his own throat when he saw that escape was cut off by other deputies.

Garnette La Fairfield, twenty-two years old, is a prisoner in the county jail charged with having passed the knives to the men. She will be arraigned on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder. She became infatuated with Evans on a visit to the jail and was seen to pass a handkerchief to him in the courtroom. The same handkerchief, it was said, was still wrapped about the knife when it was taken from Evans. A young man about twenty-five years old is being sought by the police as another accomplice.

DR. NEILL QUILTS SERVICE

Will Take Position With American Smelting and Refining Company.

Washington, May 14.—Dr. Charles P. Neill, United States commissioner of labor since 1905, and recently made commissioner of labor statistics in the new department of labor, resigned to take a position outside the government service. He was prominently identified with the arbitration of many noted wage disputes under the Erdman act.

Doctor Neill has taken a position with the American Smelting and Refining company to organize and conduct its labor department. In a statement Doctor Neill said the offer came to him from president Daniel Guggenheim through William Loeb, Jr., managing director of the Guggenheim corporations.

MRS. BROKAW KIDNAPS SON

Desires Millionaire Husband Beat Her With Frying Pan.

Colorado Springs, Colo., May 14.—Exercising a cunning that is seldom shown by women, Mrs. Tillie Seaman Brokaw "kidnaped" her small son, "Buster," and fled with him on a Santa Fe train while her husband—the father of the child—Clarence Pierce Brokaw, a former millionaire and member of the very wealthy Brokaw family of New York, was locked up in a cell in the county jail on the charge of assaulting her with a frying pan at their home on Sunday.

Mrs. Brokaw is believed to be headed for New York, whence she and her husband came less than two years ago, after their matrimonial troubles had been aired at length.

CHIEF WILKIE TO RESIGN

Head of U. S. Secret Service to Quit Government Position.

Washington, May 14.—John E. Wilkie, chief special agent for the customs service and for fourteen years chief of the United States secret service, will resign his official position shortly. It is understood that Wilkie will accept a managerial position with one of the large detective agencies, making his headquarters in Chicago.

During the Spanish war Chief Wilkie gained much fame from his work against the Spanish spies.

OFFERS MRS. LONGSTREET JOB

Union Army Man Would Employ Woman Denied Postmastership.

Washington, May 14.—Denied re-appointment as postmistress at Gainesville, Ga., Mrs. Helen D. Longstreet, widow of a famous Confederate general, has been offered a position by a former Union soldier. She said that Col. Albert E. Boone of Clarksburg, W. Va., had offered her a place in his office at $3,600 a year. "If I find that I feel fitted to do the work in Colonel Boone's office," she added, "I shall accept his offer."

Sells $2,000,000 Morris Ranch.
Minneapolis, Minn., May 14.—In a $2,000,000 deal negotiated in Great Britain and Chicago by O. W. Kerr of Minneapolis, the famous "O" ranch of Texas, owned by the estate of Nelson Morris, Chicago packer, has changed hands. A foreign syndicate made the purchase.

Users in Dixon recommend it for Stomach and Kidney Trouble, Constipation, rheumatism and for conserving health. You can see it, drink it, get names of Dixon users to ask about it, scientist papers and full information at Todd's Hat Store. Dixon Pure Ice Co. Wheat: After showing rally early wheat turned 3-8 to 3-4 below last night. With bearish sentiment market may find oversold spots but a greater change in general situation will have to occur to give sustained strength. Receipts beginning to be lighter and clearances on old sales liberal but these facts lose weight in view of brilliant outlook.

Corn: While wheat was strong, corn rallied but gave way, closing 1-4 to 3-8 lower. Better eastern inquiry developed but offers of corn to arrive have enlarged. Receipts light and the selling today was based on expectation of heavier receipts next week. Do not expect to see weakness in this market.

Oats: Strength developed at opening fell off and oats closed about 1-4 lower than last night. Good rains reported and better inquiry for oats to arrive but prices are not following strength in May delivery which show congestion. Nothing to justify sustained advance in later deliveries.

Provisions: Trade dull, provisions steady, closing higher in most cases. Receipts better at western markets and improved prices at yards. Cash trade is reported fair for this season.

JURY FINDS JOHNSON GUILTY

Negro Fighter Is Convicted of Violating Mann Act.

Chicago, May 14.—"Jack" Johnson, negro pugilist, was found guilty of white slavery charges by a jury in Judge Carpenter's court shortly before midnight last night.

Four ballots were taken. The vote on the third being 10 to 2 for conviction. The fourth was unanimous for conviction. The verdict was that Johnson was guilty on all of the seven counts of the indictment charging violation of the Mann white slave act. A total maximum penalty of thirty-five years' imprisonment and a fine of $70,000 may be imposed should Judge Carpenter so decide.

Motion for a new trial was made immediately upon the jury's verdict. The matter was set for a hearing on May 19 and Johnson was allowed his freedom until that time upon the $50,000 bonds under which he had previously been held. He will be under constant espionage of department of justice agents, however, until the final disposition of the case.

DIXON CHIZENS GLADLY TESTIFY AND CONFIDENTLY RECOMMEND DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

It is testimony like the following that has placed Doan's Kidney Pills so far above competitors. When people right here at home raise their voices in praise there is no room left for doubt. Read the public statement of a Dixon citizen:

John Salzman, 103 Artesian Ave., Dixon, Ill., says: "I have no reason to change my good opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills which I publicly expressed some years ago. I had backache a great deal and pains across my loins. My kidneys did not act regularly and I felt miserable in every way. Finally I used Doan's Kidney Pills procured at Leake Bros. Co's. Drug Store and they did good work, relieving me I keep them in the house and whenever I take them, they help me."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

KILLED BY HIS OWN AUTO

A. S. Goodrich of Milwaukee Dies Following Strange Accident.

Chicago, May 14.—A. S. Goodrich, president of the A. S. Goodrich company, a wholesale tobacco firm of Milwaukee, was killed by his own automobile at Winnetka. A mysterious young woman who was riding with him at the time of the accident, escaped with but slight injuries. Before anyone could learn her identity she is believed to have left for Milwaukee.

Goodrich had been compelled to "kill" his engine while crossing the Northwestern tracks, and without throwing out the clutch, cranked the engine to start.

Instantly the machine lurched forward, plowing Goodrich between the fender and a telegraph pole. His chest and abdomen were crushed and he died shortly afterward.

THIRD TRY TO WRECK TRAIN

Enemies of Railroad Near Paterson, N. J., Make Another Attempt.

Paterson, N. J., May 14.—A third unsuccessful attempt to wreck an Erie passenger train was made here. Train No. 58, from Suffern, N. Y., to Jersey City, was crawling into the station when two men sprang up from beside the track, jumped on the platform between the second and third cars and attempted to uncouple them. Trainmen were on the alert, however, and prevented them from doing so. The men jumped from the train and made their escape. Later two men were arrested, but the conductor was unable to identify them and they were released.

VACUUM

Are a much talked about article especially at this season of the year.

One have made a lot of noise about them during the past year, not however without good reason, because principally, there is not a suction sweeper on the market that compares with the DOMESTIC for dirt getting qualities, and before you purchase one, either ask us for a demonstration at your home or ask your neighbor how she likes the one she purchased of us. We have over 150 in Dixon and vicinity. Don't that mean something?
